Discussion of the Week

What an exciting couple of days! After last year's dramatic snowfall and accurate weather forecasting, I am sure that the children were hoping for more snow than we had in the end. Thank you for your patience and understanding about the challenges that we face with keeping school safe and communicating these decisions to you all.

The inside of our school is showing some quite dramatic changes which the children may have told you about this week. Y6's classroom has the feel of being inside the solar system as you step through the door and Y5 have their wonderful planet art work on display on their door. Y3 and 4 are in the process of creating a cave in the corridor, and the Titanic is sailing and then sinking along the windows outside of Y1 and Y2. This is a small part of our ongoing plans to bring the curriculum more to life for all of our children, to make their learning experiences in school more meaningful and memorable.

Litter Assembly

We started the week with an assembly for all children run by Lucie, Evie, Lorna, Christopher and Jonathan about the importance of being tidy, not leaving litter and protecting our environment and animals that live there from dangers that litter poses. The children were clear and confident and gave us all a very powerful message.

Y2 Class Assembly

What an absolutely fantastic extravaganza of entertainment we were treated to on Thursday afternoon. Thank you so much to the enormous turnout of family members who came in to be treated to singing, dancing, art work, paired balances, pieces of writing and counting. All of the children made a great contribution and were so confident! Well done Y2, I am proud of you all!

SeaCity Museum Trip

Y1 and 2 have immersed themselves into their Titanic topic today with a day at the SeaCity Museum. I am delighted that the weather did not scupper our carefully honed plans for making this happen! The children were fascinated by everything that was there for them to see and do and I am sure that they will use this experience in their upcoming units of learning. My thanks go to the large staff team and the army of parent volunteers who enabled us to make the trip a success.
